Thousands Out Of Work As Auto Workers Go On Strike

By ROBERT IRVIN
UPI Automotive Editor
DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers and General Motors today hoped for speedy settlement of a paralyzing strike, with the government helping to resolve the key issue locking negotiations — the problem of relief time.
UAW president Walter P. Reuther announced agreement with GM vice president Louis G. Seaton on the relief problem Monday night and immediately offered encouragement that the strike could be brought to an end soon — perhaps by Thursday.
There were still some 11,000 GM workers on strike, and the GM-issues unresolved which stood in the way of workers heading back to the plants. In addition, such major items as overtime, union representation, foremen working and an anti-discrimination clause have not been settled on a national basis.
GM, the world's largest automobile manufacturer, was all but

Damage In Millions Reported From Huge Storm, Few Killed

By PATRICK CONWAY
United Press International

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Hurricane Carla, a shadow of its former 150-mile-an-hour self, blew harmlessly into the Austin area today as a "tropical storm," but spawned in its wake tornado winds at Galveston that shattered buildings and caused casualties.

Police reported at least two persons killed and 50 injured in the winds described as either "tornadoes or waterspouts." The winds thundered through a path four blocks wide and more than a mile long. They were the deadliest of the series of tornadoes Carla caused over a vast area of Texas and Louisiana in its three-day battering of the Gulf Coast.

Tornado alerts were out for north and northeast Texas and Southeast Oklahoma in the general path Carla was taking.

The 150-mile-an-hour winds that smashed the Texas Gulf Coast hit Austin with winds one-third that strength.

Rain poured in sheets all along the path of the storm.

A tornado apparently spawned by Hurricane Carla today struck the Galveston County Courthouse jammed with storm refugees and tore through a 10-block residential strip where other residents were taking shelter.

First reports said there were many dead and injured. Every ambulance in the island city, still flooded by the winds and tides of Hurricane Carla which struck with gusts up to 125 miles an hour Monday, were called into service.

"We need help," Police Chief J. W. Burns said. "We know we have some dead."

Carla, still packing a 100-mile-an-hour wallop, thrashed through inland towns from the devastated Gulf Coast toward the historic capital of Austin.

The city turned out crews who worked through fringe winds up to 58 miles an hour to sandbag streams and river banks and prepared its 200,000 people to meet their first hurricane. None ever has hit Austin before. Advance winds toppled trees and caused power failures.

Carla laced through the towns of Yakam, Shiner, Edna and Wadley with winds up to 115 miles an hour. The department of public safety reported the roof of a Negro school sheltering 300 people in Edna caved in, but there were no injuries.

The state ordered 2,000 National Guardsmen into areas battered Monday by winds up to 150 miles an hour and floods that surged through cities and towns on 12-foot tides.

Backlash of the storm continued to whip the coast, and hurricane warnings remained up from Corpus Christi, Tex., to Morgan City, La.

Damage was mounting. Estimates ranged to "hundreds of millions of dollars."

More To Come
The worst was not over on the coast. An eight-foot tide levee at flooded Port Arthur threatened to give way before an eight-foot tide, officials said.
As many as 6,000 people were holed up in flooded Texas City, appealing for drinking water. After several futile tries, a truck finally got through with water Monday night. An 11-vehicle U. S. Army amphibious unit was moving out at dawn from Louisiana to the rescue of the Texas City residents.

Cleanup work began on part of the coast, but National Guardsmen were told their main job would be to aid in removing refugees and to protect life and property. Officials appealed to the estimated 200,000 to 300,000 Texans who fled the coast before Carla's fury to stay away until the winds and water recede and all danger passes.

Winds Rise
About 125 miles inland, winds rose to 58 miles an hour in gusts at Austin, where flash flooding is 300,000 FLEE CARLA — Army reserve units completed evacuation of Corpus Christi beach area before hurricane Carla, with its 150-mile-an-hour winds, aimed itself toward the low-lying Texas coast between Galveston and Arkansas Pass near Corpus Christi. An estimated 300,000 persons in Texas and Louisiana were removed to safety inland as rising tides flooded the coastal area, foreboding the coming of Carla.

Turns Self In To Paper After Murders

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — The powerfully built young man was shabbily dressed but polite and insistent. He wanted to see Tom Tullett, crime editor of the Daily Mirror.
The reception clerk at the newspaper office gave him a slip of paper and on it the young man wrote his name as Edwin David Sims of Gravesend in Kent.
"Confidential business," he added.

Today the "confidential business" was listed in police records as murder and Sims was under arrest.

He was charged specifically with strangling a 15-year-old girl whose naked-body was found in a marsh 100 yards from the body of her 16-year-old boyfriend, who also was strangled.

The teenage sweethearts, pretty, blonde Lilian Edmeades and Malcolm Johnson, had gone for a stroll Sunday night after attending services at a church near their homes in Gravesend.

Miss Edmeades' body was found at 10:29 a. m. Monday.
At almost exactly that moment, 10:30 a. m., Sims sauntered along High Holborn in London, 22 miles from the scene of the slaying, with a bundle wrapped in newspaper under his arm.

He peered up at the giant new Mirror building through his glasses, shifted the bundle to a more comfortable position and entered the lobby to ask for Tullett.
He was tieless and his shirt was open to the third button. Despite the mild weather he wore a topcoat. Tullett and another reporter took him to a waiting room and there Sims opened the newspaper parcel. It contained grisly evidence of the crime.
The reporters immediately summoned police.

Structure To Be Built In Watershed

Bids for the construction of the first floodwater retaining structure in the West Fork of Clark's River Watershed Conservancy District will be mailed this week.
Bids will be advertised during the next thirty days giving the plans and specifications of the structure.
The first structure to be built, number 20, will be constructed on Wiley Creek near the Graves-Marshall county line, near Oak Level.

Although the structure will be in Graves County, the approximately 40 acres lake which will be formed behind it will be in Marshall County.

Seventeen structures in all will be built in the district which includes part of Calloway, Graves, Marshall and McCracken counties.

The letting of bids for this structure marks the culmination of a long battle with the Clark's River.

Landowners in the watershed formed the Conservancy District and a special tax is being paid this year by those landowners to help defray the cost of the retaining structures.

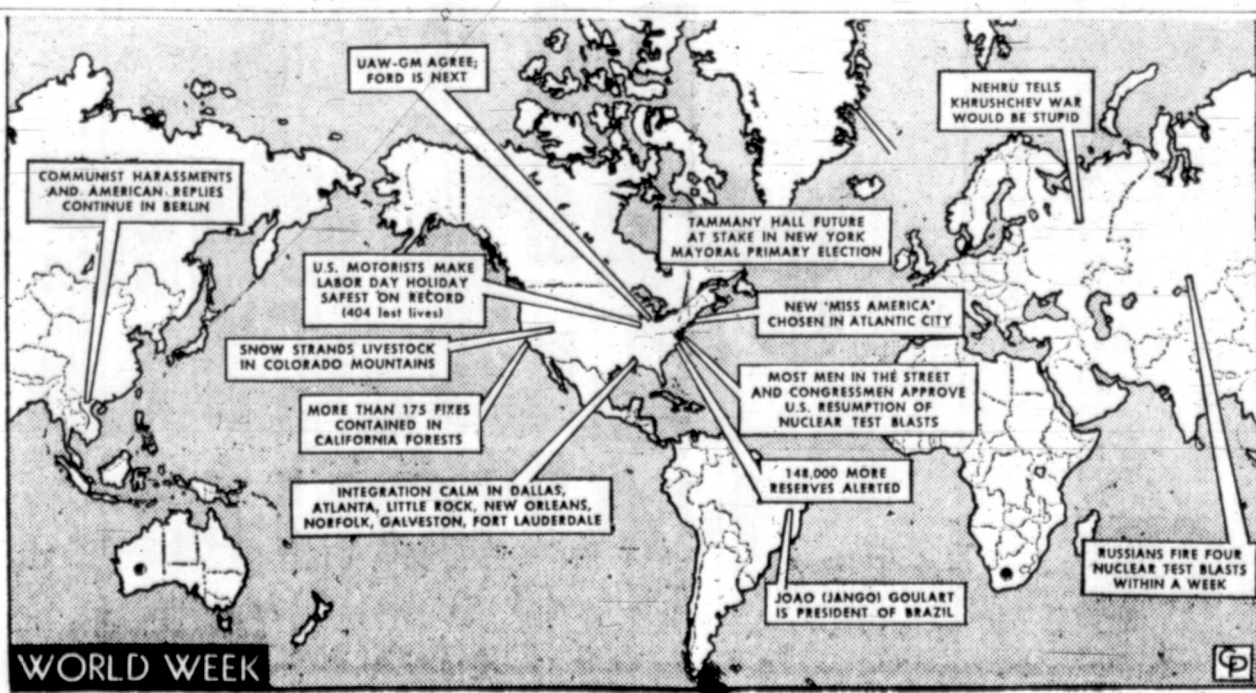

A similar program is underway in the East Fork Clark's River Conservancy District.

SPORTS PARADE

By OSCAR FRALEY

United Press International

FOREST HILLS, N. Y. (UPI) —

The man who knew them all asserted today that Pancho Gonzales has stepped to the all-time top in tennis, even above the immortal Big Bill Tilden.

That's the word from Merce Beasley, 79-year-old tennis coach who turned out dozens of champions, in a sharp about-face from his long-time stand that Tilden was the best of them all.

"Gonzales has proved his right to the rating by the manner in which he has ruled the powerful program for more than a decade," shrugs Beasley. "The facts are incontrovertible."

Tilden had one or two difficult matches in any tournament he played because there wasn't the current quantity and quality of players around in his day."

Beasley adds, "But Gonzales has a playing plus over Tilden plus harder opposition."

Names Top Ten

Seven exponents of the "big game," the lightning service and the rush to the net, head Beasley's regaled all-time top 10. The list consists of:

1. Pancho Gonzales.
2. Bill Tilden.
3. Jack Kramer.
4. Don Budge.
5. Lew Hoad.
6. Ellsworth Vines.
7. Fred Perry.
8. Henri Cochet.
9. Frank Parker.
10. Bobby Riggs.

None In Sight

"There is nobody on the horizon with a chance to step into this group," Beasley insists. "A amateur tennis is in a very low state because you might say that Kramer has stripped the tennis kindergarten. What I'd like to see is Kramer and Gonzales working with the Junior Davis Cup squad and the kids need what they could teach."

Beasley, long one of the top tutors in tennis, knows whereof he speaks. During a 40-year career, in which he coached nine years at Princeton and five years at Tulane, he turned out such champions as Doris Hart, Parker, Vines, Gardner Mulloy, Wilmer Allison, Pancho Segura and Cliff Sutter.

He once attempted to teach Babe Ruth the game of tennis. The Bambino wound up and clouted a ball out of the court and over a row of nearby houses.

Beasley explained that the object was to keep the ball in the court. "Hell," snorted Ruth, tossing aside the racket. "I don't want anything to do with a game where you have to keep the ball in the park."

Coaches In Havana

Another time, during the reign of another Cuban dictator, Beasley was hired to become coach at a club in Havana. Shortly after his arrival, he was advised that the reigning Cuban tennis champion was unacceptable to "El Presidente" and that the dictator expected him to win the Cuban title with one of his clubmembers in the forthcoming championships.

"I picked out the best players in the club and we worked like demons," Beasley recalls. "There was no question that if we lost I would be reported and he might not be so lucky."

On the day of the finals, with Beasley's protégé in against the defending champion, Beasley watched "with a very uneasy stomach."

His man finally won and the President ordered three days of free champagne at the club.

"At 10 o'clock that night," he grins, "there was a summons from the president to tour Havana in an open bar. I had to hold my champagne up in the back seat but, once again, we made it."

Today, he says, Tilden couldn't against the wily Gonzales.

Hina Talent Belies Sad Outlook

Murray State Line Coach Bill Hina prefers the classical pessimistic attitude for football coaches, but when he discusses the wealth of talent he has this year he can't help but light up.

In previous interviews, he had already rather grudgingly admitted that he couldn't be much better pleased with his tackles and centers. When asked to evaluate his guards, out came the same old story: "Well, we've got fine depth, good speed and size, hard workers, and the best blocker in the league." Weaknesses? He mentioned a need for more work on fundamentals by some of his young players, but he didn't seem too disturbed.

The Racers will have four of their top five guards from last year back for another season, plus a fine performer from two seasons ago, a good prospect who was redshirted last year, and a group of promising freshmen.

Heading the list of returnees are Jimmy Chapman, who made second team all-conference last year, and Jimmy Mills, who made the third team. Lloyd Block and Ralph Peniakiewicz also returned. Marion Coffey, a letterman two years ago is also back. Freshmen include Jerry Woodall, redshirted last year, John Wheeler, John Ester, Norman Foltz, Don Herron, and Jerry Paris.

Chapman, 5-11, 225 pound senior from Covington, Tennessee, is the best blocker in the OVC, according to Hina, and one of the

A Letter Writing Rookie Provided The Key Homer For Los Angeles Yesterday In Dodgers' Must Game With Phillies

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International

A rookie who landed in the big leagues merely by writing a letter was the only reason that kept the Los Angeles Dodgers from being completely written off today.

His name is Gordon Windhorn. Don't be upset if you've never heard of him. A lot of others haven't either.

Windhorn is a 28-year old bench-warmer with the Dodgers. He has come to bat for them 16 times this year and owns only four hits. But the Dodgers would have been dead without him Monday night.

Batting for Willie Davis in the 11th inning, Windhorn connected for his first major league homer to give the Dodgers a "must" 6-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies that kept alive their flickering pennant hopes in the National League.

The victory moved the Dodgers within 3 1/2 games of the idle first-place Cincinnati Reds. Had they lost, they not only would have dropped 4 1/2 games behind, but they would have been two games down in the last column and virtually all through.

Until Windhorn delivered his homer, reliever Don Ferrarese had pitched seven innings of hitless ball and it looked like curtains for the Dodgers.

Among those who are familiar with Windhorn is Casey Stengel.

Stengel was the man he wrote and asked the Yankees to "bring me up."

Casey read the letter and promptly invited the rookie to the Yankees camp. He was voted the outstanding Yankee rookie during spring training of 1959 but soon drifted back to the minors and eventually was picked up by the Dodgers.

His homer Monday night was one of five in the game. Lee Walls hit two and Ron Fairly and Charlie Smith one each. Ron Pyramoski was the winner in relief.

The San Francisco Giants mathematically eliminated the Pittsburgh Pirates from the NL race with a 4-3 triumph in 10 innings, and the Minnesota Twins downed the Los Angeles Angels, 5-2.

There were only two games played in the American League where the Boston Red Sox ripped the Washington Senators, 14-4, and the Minnesota Twins downed the Los Angeles Angels, 5-2.

Losers Erroy Face made only three pitches, and Felipe Alou laced into the third one for his 17th homer that gave the Giants their victory in the 10th over the Pirates. Dick Stuart had tied the score at 3-all with his 27th homer in the sixth.

Jack Sanford went the distance for the Giants and gave up six hits for his 11th victory. Alvin McBean worked the first nine innings for Pittsburgh before Face came on to start the last of the 10th.

Carl Sawatski broke up a pitching duel between Larry Jackson and Lew Burdette with a two-run single in the sixth that paced the Cards to their victory over the Braves.

Jackson allowed only six hits in winning his 13th game. The Cardinals collected 10 hits, including three apiece by Stan Musial and Ken Boyer. Burdette suffered his 10th loss against 16 victories.

Rookie Wins 15th

Rookie Don Schwall won his 15th for the Red Sox with a seven-inning over the sinking Senators. The Red Sox, trailing by four runs going into the third inning, knocked out starter Tom Cheney with three runs in that frame and tied the score in the sixth on Jim Pagliaroni's 15th homer.

Boston turned the game into a romp in the seventh by scoring eight runs—six of them unearned. Chuck Schilling had three hits for the Red Sox and Jackie Jensen drove in three runs. Marty Kutyna was the loser.

A three-run homer by pinch hitter Joe Altobelli in the eighth and the five-hit pitching of Camilo Pascual led the Twins to victory over the Angels.

Pascual struck out 13 batters in winning his 13th game. He has lost 15. Pascual's 13 strikeouts raised his season total to 198, tops in the AL and the most recorded by any pitcher on the transplanted Washington club since Walter Johnson's 208 in 1916.
